Notable Alumni in Health and Medicine

Arthur Aufses Jr. ’44, renowned surgeon; Chairman Emeritus, Department of Surgery, Mount Sinai Medical Center

Baruch Blumberg ’46, internationally renowned physician, researcher and scholar; won the 1976 Nobel Prize in Medicine (with D. Carlton Gajdusek, M.D.) for discovery of the Hepatitis B virus

Jay Cohn ’52, pioneering cardiologist and heart disease researcher; holds several patents on inventions to improve diagnostic and therapeutic approaches to heart failure and hypertension

Estelle Cooke-Sampson ’74, radiologist; full colonel and state surgeon, D.C. National Guard

Michael DiPietro ’70, renowned pediatric radiologist, pioneer in the use of sonography for the diagnosis of spinal cord anomalies in children; the John F. Holt Collegiate Professor of Radiology, University of Michigan

D. Peter Drotman ’69, editor-in-chief of the Emerging Infectious Diseases journal published by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

Gerald Ente ’51, pioneering pediatrician whose breakthrough technique, blue light therapy, is used in treating jaundiced newborns

Michael Epstein ’59, professor of orthopedic surgery; director of the Orthopedic Hand Fellowship, Baylor College of Medicine, Houston

Sue Goldie ’84, professor of health decision science, Harvard School of Public Health; MacArthur Genius Grant for her contributions to major public health problems; has worked worldwide to treat and prevent HIV and cervical cancer in women

Peter Jatlow ’57, leading researcher of Lyme disease and substance addiction; professor and chairman, Laboratory Medicine & Psychiatry, Yale University

Douglas LaBier ’65, nationally recognized business psychologist, author, researcher and psychotherapist

Dr. Kathy Magliato ’85, one of the world’s leading female cardiothoracic surgeons; director of Women’s Cardiac Services, Saint John’s Medical Center, Santa Monica, Cal.

Gregg Meyer ’84, Rhodes Scholar and former Senior VP, Massachusetts General Hospital

John Ostrom ’51, world-famous paleontologist who linked dinosaurs to birds

Ira Rutkow ’70, surgeon; developed the surgical operation for hernia repair that is considered the gold standard; nationally known writer and medical historian

Peter Schwarz ’62, leading obstetrician; founder, Ovarian Cancer Early Detection Program, Yale University School of Medicine
Notable Alumni in Health and Medicine (continued)

Marisa Silveri ‘95, behavioral neuroscientist, MacLean Hospital, Dept. of Psychology of Harvard Medical School

Alfred Sommer ‘63, former dean, Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health; discovered the life-saving potential of vitamin A

Simon Stertzer ‘58, cardiologist; “father of balloon angioplasty”; director of experimental angioplasty at Stanford University School of Medicine; first to perform a coronary angioplasty in the United States

Vincent Verdile ‘77, dean of Albany Medical College

Armand Versaci ‘45, former Chief of Plastic/Reconstructive Surgery at Rhode Island Hospital; participated in more than 40 international mission trips to establish burn units and train local medical staff in areas of need

Ronald Weinstein ‘60, internationally acclaimed authority on telemedicine; head of pathology and telemedicine, University of Arizona College of Medicine

Jeffrey Wisoff ‘74, director of pediatric neurosurgery, NYU Medical Center